Los Angeles galleries exhibit work that is the antidote to June Gloom. Keeping an eye on the contemporary art scene in LA informs both my artistic and curatorial practices. Art explored from an artist viewpoint offers design professionals insight into current art movements.

Sundaram Tagore Gallery showing of Hiroshi Senju's Waterfalls (above) are nature-inspired, well crafted paintings that express movement. The use of subtle contemporary materials such as florescent paint providing an element that changes the work under enhanced lighting. Yayoi Kusama's Flowers that Bloom at Gagosian Gallery are lively sculptures, however I prefer her soulful monochrome paintings with their serene presence.
